

Guide for Seeking or Donating Used Assistive Technology in South Carolina

Are you searching for or do you have used assistive technology?

Start with the SC Assistive Technology Program's Web page on Reutilization at <http://www.sc.edu/scatp/reutilization.html>. This explains the different programs in South Carolina that facilitate the exchange of used equipment.

SC Assistive Technology Exchange

Go to the website at www.scatpexchange.net. It's fast, easy, and free. You can view limited information without joining. Browse through available equipment and read "Frequently Asked Questions." Register as a user to see more detailed descriptions or contact people who have items listed. List any items you need, as well as any items you want to sell or give away. It is extremely helpful to include pictures with your available items. If you don't have Internet access, you can call SCATP at (803) 935-5273. You can also ask about help with transportation of your item.

Can't Find What You Need Online?

SCATP has equipment that people donate on location and then it is available to the next person. You will need an appointment to drop off and pick up equipment. Call SCATP at 800-915-4522, 803-935-5273.

Where Else Can I find Equipment?

SCATP partners with organizations in South Carolina, Georgia, and other areas to get equipment to those who need it. Contact the locations below. Their representatives can tell you if the equipment you need is available through their network, and arrange to get equipment that you might want to give away. The SCATP Reutilization Web page explains the services of each program. Each program can explain individual policies, procedures and requirements.

While you'll probably want to start with programs near you, it doesn't hurt to reach out to everyone for the equipment you need or have to donate.
